Arapahoe County launches live-streaming of public meetings Residents can view Tuesday Commissioner Public Meetings live or later

LITTLETON, CO --- Arapahoe County residents can now watch Board of County Commissioner meetings without leaving their home or office.

Arapahoe County offers live-streaming of its 9:30 a.m. Tuesday Commissioner Public Meetings. Using your computer, smart phone or tablet device, with the click of a button you can watch the Tuesday morning meeting, as well as download agendas and back-up materials through www.arapahoegov.com.

Didn't catch the meeting live? Video links to past meetings will be available through the County's website and YouTube Channel, as well.

"Our county is one of the most geographically diverse counties in Colorado with our east and west borders stretching 72 miles," said Commissioner Nancy A. Doty, who serves as Board Chair. "If you live in eastern Arapahoe County, it can be quite the drive to attend a public meetings in Littleton. By offering live streaming of our public meetings, Arapahoe County residents can stay informed about their county government without leaving their home or office."

Arapahoe County has partnered with Open Media Foundation, a media and technology nonprofit organization dedicated to offering affordable, high-end media and technology services, such as live-streaming of public meetings, to local governments.

During the next several weeks, Arapahoe County will expand its offering of live-stream and video recording of meetings to include the Planning Commission and Board of Adjustment.
