Arapahoe County to review building naming practices

Study session will be scheduled in January to consider a policy prohibiting naming County-owned buildings, parks or streets after any person while they are still alive

LITTLETON, CO --- Due to concerns expressed by members of the community over the last week, the Arapahoe County Board of County Commissioners will review its building naming practices, and consider a policy prohibiting the naming of County-owned facilities, parks and streets after any person while that person is still alive.

“Given the recent events, the Commissioners owe it to our citizens to revisit past practices for naming County buildings,” said Commissioner Rod Bockenfeld, who serves as Board Chairman.

A study session on a proposed building naming policy will be scheduled for January. The meeting will be posted and open to the public.
